TILED CONSERVATORY ROOFS

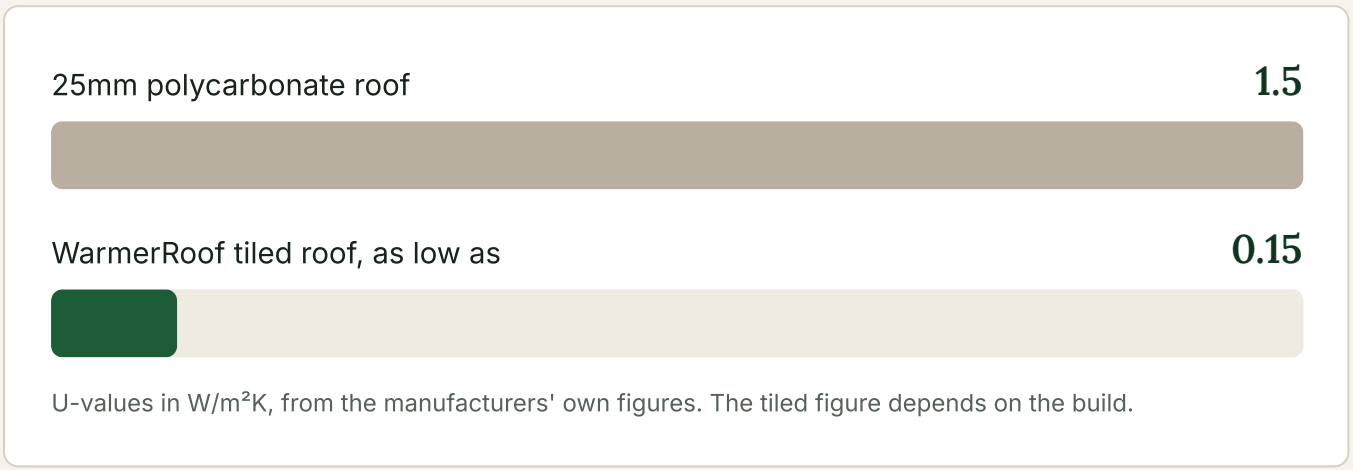

A conservatory that feels like part of the house.

The old roof comes off. A solid, insulated tiled roof goes on the frames you already have, with a plastered ceiling inside.

- Free visit and fixed written price
- Building Control certificate
- 10 year workmanship guarantee

About a tenth of the heat getting through

A U-value is how much heat passes through one square metre of roof. Lower means warmer.

U-values in W/m²K, from the manufacturers' own figures. The tiled figure depends on the build.

What happens to the room

- ✓ The old roof comes off. We never clad over it.
- ✓ A timber-framed, insulated roof goes on your existing frames.
- ✓ Inside: a plastered ceiling, ready to paint. Spotlights if you want them.
- ✓ Outside: tiles or slate, so it looks like part of the house.
- ✓ We handle Building Control and hand you the certificate.

Inside a tiled roof: plastered ceiling with spotlights. WarmerRoof system shown.

The one we would put on our own house

After 40 years in the trade, WarmerRoof is the tiled roof Jerry recommends most.

- ✓ Timber framed. Timber is a natural insulator, and it feels warm to the touch.
- ✓ A U-value as low as 0.15.
- ✓ A 25 year manufacturing warranty, plus 40 year warranties on the tiles.
- ✓ Tested and certified by LABC and Stroma Building Control.
- ✓ About the same weight as the glass roof it replaces, so sound frames can usually carry it.
- ✓ Made in a UK factory.

Not every conservatory needs one

If your frames or base will not take a solid roof, we say so on the visit. If a panel roof at around half the cost will do the job, we say that too.

A roof you only buy once

1

Built to last

2

The heat stays in

About a tenth of the heat through the roof, against polycarbonate.

3

Your frames stay

Only the roof is replaced. Frames that still work stay out of the skip.
